Approval of minutes

The minutes from the August meeting were presented and were approved unanimously.

Guest speaker

OSU police chief – Craig Stone

Wants to share some new initiatives. OSU police is one of the 73 university police that are accredited. Bike patrols – officers on bike, have been instated which provides more mobility to get between buildings in campus.

Student safety services – we now have a second dispatcher to accommodate more calls and safe rides. Operates 7 days a week. They are still hiring student workers.

One should call if something looks suspicious.

Working with Columbus city police to ascertain if alerts need to be sent off.

Faulk.30 – What have you done to increase surveillance of sexual harassment? What should we do when we are faced with the harassment similar to the Knowlton and Ohio Union sexual offence?

A- The criminal has been captured. He was a serial offender. There were more victims. But only few had reported. He was arrested the next day. He has been banned from OSU campus. We'll try to stop it and deter the perpetrator from committing it. We have a joint patrol officer who works on such issues.

Wesaw.1 – Columbus police department officers are posted on high street near bus stop. Has there been an uptick in the pedestrians being hit by car?

A- Haven't heard about that. We have had a campaign for bikers, pedestrians to look after one another. We have tried to calm down the traffic resulting in fewer accidents. Not familiar with the high street whether there have been an increase in accidents or not.

UCAT - Jessica Riviere

Mission at UCAT is to support all those who teach. There are 5 full time members in the consulting teams. Many of the graduate student consultants are close to graduating so interested folks can apply. We provide individual consultations – faculty, GTA (help grad students write teaching philosophy and teaching statements)

We are very discrete but have to keep records.

We provide feedback on your teaching. Small group instructional diagnostics (SGID) – requires about 20 mins of the class time. Have consultation based on the feedback received from SGID.

We conduct University wide GTA orientation where more than 600 grad students participated in the program. At the orientation there is a teaching resource fair with UCAT partners.

College teaching series, reading groups on teaching, academic job search training etc. are some of the events on teaching in UCAT – all links on their website

Starting TA resource group (STAR)- aimed at first or second year GTAs.

Wirza.1 – What are your thoughts about GTAs taking some UCAT courses before teaching even as each department has its own teaching orientation program?

A – Some departments send their students to UCAT even if they have their own orientation. Some departments do not send their students and we arrange for funds for snacks for their grad teaching orientation. It varies a lot between the depts.

Valez.71 – Are the programs/workshops available to students who are not currently teaching but are interested in academic jobs.

A - Yes.

Montoya.29 – Language in the email makes it unclear for the new graduate students whether or not they should attend the programs/workshops?

A - We encourage all to attend the workshops.

President Bowers.461 adjourned the meeting at 4:38 pm.

As I write this, I'm pausing from focus on the Executive Committee Retreat which will be occurring this weekend. I have to confess this is one of those moments when I'm so focused on what's ahead, that it's a bit jarring to pause and look back over the past weeks since we last gathered. There are however, some important things in the works that I want you to be aware of.

First, I want to share with you a pretty amazing experience I had a few weeks ago representing you at A Night on the Oval, a dinner celebrating the successful conclusion of the But for Ohio State Capital Campaign. The campaign drastically exceeded its goal, raising more than 3 billion dollars from 750,000 donors. While the food and festivities of the dinner were all terrific, what really struck me was how moved all the guests were. These were, by and large, folks whose names appear on many of our buildings and programs. Many of them have been making annual gifts to Ohio State since before any of us (yes—in one or two cases-- even me!) were born. That night though they weren't there to be individually recognized. Instead they were gathered as parts of this great endeavor to which each of us also belongs. It was a thrilling and humbling experience to be among so many people who share a goal of making all our goals possible. There have been several high points in my time as your president. Looking around at the faces at that dinner was one I won't soon forget.

Regarding gathering data regarding how programs define a 20 hour graduate associate work week, we've gained broad support. The graduate school has agreed to ask programs for the information and the Center for the Study of Student Life has agreed to take on management of the data. I've had opportunity to discuss this with the President, Provost, Dean of Arts & Sciences and the interim Dean of the Graduate School. All share a sense that this is vital data to gather. I believe we'll be able to rely on each to assist in encouraging programs to participate.

Two longer term strategic planning initiatives are starting up that will both require graduate student input. The first is on the graduate school level. Dean Herness is initiating a process aimed at documenting broad concerns and goals for the graduate school as a whole prior to the search process for a new graduate school dean. There will be opportunities to participate, both thru surveys and through focus groups later in this term and early in Spring. President Drake is beginning a sort of mini-strategic planning process (my words not his) to review whether and how the university might make adjustments in its overall plan and vision. As with the graduate school exercise, there will be opportunities to offer input. Again, this will provide those of us here today to contribute to the graduate experience of those who come long after us.

At our October meeting Dr. "J" Javaune Adams-Gaston, PhD Senior Vice President for Student Life, will be our guest speaker. Please be thinking of what you'd like to ask her. As you might not be aware, Student Life's portfolio of responsibilities includes much of anything we do at Ohio State outside of the classroom, from counselling to the RPAC. It's been a couple of years since she has visited CGS, so I look forward to a robust discussion.

Finally, once again, thank you, both for your work on behalf of our fellow students and for allowing me to serve as your president!

David
